THE BRAVE ACT
OF JOSEPH BROWN.*Hauler in Rist Slope at Broad
Ford Saves Four
Lives.*WENT BACK INTO THE MINE*Following an Explosion of Coal Dust or Gas and Dragged Four Foreign
Miners Who Were Burned and Panic
Stricken Out to Safety.

Joe Brown, a hauler in Rist mine at Broad Ford, saved the lives of four miners last evening following an explosion in a distant section of the mine. The hauler had been burned, two of them badly and two not so seriously, by the first flash of fire and were so panic stricken that they would have fled where they lay from the back dump that gathered following the explosion had it not been for the courageous and heroic action of Brown. The explosion was either from dust or a pocket of gas that settled in the mine after a heavy fall of rock.

The accident happened between 7 and 8 o'clock last night. There were about 25 miners in two sections of the mine on night shift. Two drivers are on the night shift, Joe Brown and John Horner. Brown was on the section where the explosion occurred. When the shock came he was knocked down and his light blown out. Horner in another section of the mine was making up a trip of cars. He was between two of them and the force of the explosion knocked him around in lively fashion between the cars. After the first shock of the explosion Brown started to run for the mouth of the pit. Trap doors were down and brattices blown out every few yards. Then it occurred to him that he might be able to help four men who were up near the face in a heading on his section. Without any light he started to make his way to them. Then their cries reached his ears and he called to them to make their way out.

All four of the men were lying on their faces in the ditch when Brown reached them. Gathering them about him Brown supported on each arm two of the men, the two most seriously burned, and placing the other two in front of him he started for the mouth of the pit. The two men most seriously burned were frantic with pain and fright and it was with the greatest difficulty that Brown got them and the two men in front of him to the surface a half mile away.

Four horses were rescued from the mine by Stable Boys Richard Heberly, Paul Holt and three other volunteers. The animals were badly smoked. Matthew McKay, the night mine foreman, was on duty at the time of the accident and he was active in getting the small force of men out of the mine immediately after the explosion happened. The fact that the fire was not affected by the explosion and kept running was a big factor in preventing black dump from accumulating rapidly.

The explosion occurred at the point where the four foremen were working. The shock was severe in that section. It came a few minutes after a heavy rock fell in one of the workings. It is believed that the fall caused a circulation of dust in the mine, which is a very dry one, and that it was touched off from one of the miners' lamps.

Twenty minutes after the explosion when all but one of the miners had been accounted for a rescuing party was just starting in after John Sam-binsky, a veteran miner, when he appeared at the surface and asked what was the matter. The absence of the haulers from his section and the fact that he could not find anyone in the pit caused him to come out to learn what had happened. He would not believe an explosion had taken place. He said he noticed a very heavy fall and smoke, but thought nothing of it.

Drs. H. J. Coll and E. H. Rabe were summoned from Connellville and dressed the wounds of the injured men. Andrew Benko was the most seriously burned. He was brought to the Cottage State hospital.

Forty deaths were brought to the hospital suffering from severe burns about the head, face, legs and back. His condition is painful but not particularly serious. His hands received the worst punishment from the flames.

Sheriff Shields
Again Convicted

Special to The Courier.
GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 12.—"I am a victim of a gang of conspirators and I will not rest until the whole plot is unearthed," declared Sheriff John E. Shields of Westmoreland county, in his office in the jail last night. He was convicted yesterday afternoon of allowing prisoners to escape. Continuing he said:

"Great coal companies, the Controller's office and the employees of the district attorney's office are back of the move to harass me, but I will fight the case, even though I am compelled to take it before the highest tribunal. At present I am satisfied to allow Judge A. D. McConnell to consider my appeal for a new trial. I expect a decision soon and hope it will be in my favor."

Sheriff Shields was convicted by a jury last Friday on charges of perjury, obstruction and misdemeanor. He was charged that he had used $25 in an illegal manner. The sheriff claims, however, that his accounts when properly audited, will show that he is "square" with the county. Yesterday his conviction followed in the case of allowing prisoners to escape. The sheriff, through his attorneys, immediately gave notice that he would "fight to the last ditch."

Birdman Ward
Lost in New Jersey

United Press Telegram.
ASH BROOK, N. J., Sept. 12.—"Well, of all the things I ever saw," ejaculated Mrs. Mary Robinson, as she sat in her doorway here, and saw stranger in a biplane sweep across the road and settle in a wheat field a short distance away.

After accomplishing his landing, the stranger explained that he was James J. Ward, and would they kindly lend him a map of New Jersey and point out to him where he was. Ward is a biplane ace and is flying over the island, New York, in an effort to fly from the Atlantic to the Pacific for a prize of $50,000. He had intended following the tracks of the Erie railroad; but after passing Jersey City lost his course and found himself sailing over Newark, far from the Erie. He steered his way south until he saw the railroad tracks four miles north of Elizabeth.

The prize he is trying for is the same one that aviator Robert G. Fowler is contesting for.

Chas. Manley Fee
Has a Birthday

Court Crier Charles Manley Fee, Sr., celebrated the anniversary of his birth on Tuesday at his Uniontown home. He had as his guest for the occasion his brother, Thomas M. Fee, of Pittsburgh. An unusual dinner was spread for the celebration and the festivities of the season kept the festive board. When a reporter approached Mr. Fee and asked him age he quipped foolishly, then winked the other eye.

Mr. Fee is a well preserved man for his age and appears years younger than he is said to be. He formerly lived in Connellville and has many friends here and at Uniontown who remembered him on his birthday. When bedtime came Tuesday evening he was glad to turn in. His arm fairly ached from the many handshakes that accompanied his birthday greetings.

HER DAUGHTER BACK*Says South Union Township

Cases in Criminal Court This Morning—M. J. Cullen Acquitted of Ex-tortion.

Special to The Courier.
UNIONTOWN, Sept. 12.—Helen Klimo, aged 21, of Dawson, through her attorney, W. C. McKean, filed a petition this morning for a writ of habeas corpus to recover her daughter, Catherine, aged two years and eight months, from Mrs. Olive Underwood of South Union township. The petitioner lives with W. J. Moore of Dawson as a domestic. She states that the child was conceived in the old country, Joseph Urasvick being her father, and that she is preparing to return to her native home and that Mrs. Sarah B. Cochran of Dawson is helping pay her expenses back. When the child was born she lived with her brother and on account of his large family the child was given to Mrs. Underwood and arrangements made to pay her $2 a week for its care. She went to Mrs. Underwood on July 30 to make payment and told them that she was going to leave this country and take the child with her. Anna Welsh, an adopted sister of Mrs. Underwood, came into the room while she was there and had Helen Klimo sign a paper which they told her was being circulated for a prize. She signed it and on September 12 returned to get the child, when she was told that she had signed papers asking for the adoption of the child by Mrs. Underwood, and that a petition of adoption had been presented to the court.

The court issued a regulation returnable today, ordering Mrs. Underwood to appear in court with the child. A preliminary injunction was granted this morning on petition of J. B. Sprout against Elias and Morris Friedman, Uniontown merchants. The plaintiff has a small room in the rear of the store, which he uses for storing shoes. In his petition he charges that the defendants nailed rafters to the roof of the building and punched holes in it.

Sprout alleges that rain leaked through the tar paper roof and ruined his stock of shoes. The defendants are restrained from further trespass and are directed to repair the damage that has been done. A hearing will be held next Monday morning.

In the small court room the entire morning was taken up with the trial of James H. Golden, charged with desertion by his wife, Rebecca Golden. The testimony is somewhat splotchy. Last week the same case was tried but the jury failed to agree.

Robert Everhart entered a plea of guilty to carrying concealed weapons. J. W. Mitchell was the prosecutor. Thomas Mahan was acquitted of assault and battery with intent to ravish. Costs were put on the county, with none allowed the Justice of the Peace who sent the case to court.

Mr. J. Cullen charged with extortion by A. S. Cohen was acquitted and the costs were divided between the prosecutor and the county. The court would not allow the costs to be imposed in this manner and sent the jurors back to revise their verdict. Cullen is a constable in Lower Tyrone township and on May 18 Cohen alleges that he extorted $2 from him at his office on pretense that he would not serve a warrant and arrest him for receiving stolen goods. Information was made before Squire Robert McLaughlin.

Ed Wensky and John Smith were placed on trial just before noon charged with sending threatening letters and assault and battery with intent to ravish. Mike Vorreit being the prosecutor. Mike claims that they wrote him letters demanding $150.

The jury returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of W. H. Falkner and John Antonio, charged by Jacob Knox with larceny.

William Smith, charged with unlawful cutting and assault and battery, was acquitted, county to pay half the costs and the prosecutor, Alex. McBeth, the other half.

Joseph Asaid was convicted of selling liquor without license in Brownsville.

The sudden cold snap which swooped down on the whole region during the night caused the mercury to record the lowest mark this morning of any time since last spring. The temperature was 19 degrees at the West Penn at 8 o'clock this morning and other thermometers were down to 61 about the same time, or an hour or so earlier. There was no frost because of the atmospheric conditions.

The cold weather caused considerable unpleasantness. It remained too cool for comfort throughout the morning. Last night there was an unprecedented demand for extra blankets, quilts and other bedclothing. Yesterday morning the temperature was 72 but a cold north wind indicated a further drop in the mercury. By evening the temperature was 73, the 6 o'clock record, and after the sun went down the mercury dropped gradually until it was below 60 at 1 P. M., and went lower through the night.

The river is falling steadily, being at a three foot stage this morning. Last evening it was 3.40 feet.

The purchase of a five foot strip of land to be used as a path for pupils attending the Rock Ridge building and a new arrangement in regard to the delivery of coal to buildings featured the regular monthly meeting of the Connellsville township School Board which was held last evening.

The board authorized the purchase in fee simple of a strip of land five feet in width from John Nicholson leading from the Rock Ridge school to the Springfield pike. This strip will be converted into a road by which pupils can reach the school without making a circuitous route by the present roads. Pupils living out the pike at present must either trespass on the Nicholson land or walk a roundabout way almost into Snyderstown to reach the road along which the school is located. The new path will cut off considerable distance. Between 15 and 20 pupils will be benefited by the new arrangement.

The contract for coal during the present term was awarded to the Johnston Coal Company but must be delivered under certain conditions. Members of the board declared that there were irregularities in the delivery of coal last year and that the board paid for more fuel than it received for school purposes. The contract this year requires that coal must be delivered during school hours in 50 bushel loads. The driver is required to hand the teacher, and not the janitor, a coal check. In this way the board can check upon the coal delivered.

Routine matters, including the payment of bills, were transacted by the board. Solicitor F. E. Younkla was directed to supervise the transfer of the Nicholson land to the township board as a municipal corporation.

Attorney Chad L. John who was appointed master to take testimony in the divorce case of Thomas J. Lynch against Margaret E. Lynch, on Tuesday filed his report, recommending that a divorce be granted on grounds of desertion.

Mr. Lynch is a railroad worker who runs out of Brownsville. He was married in Dunbar township on October 12, 1906. He is now only 25 years of age. His wife lived at Dunbar before her marriage. She is now living at Uniontown. They have two children, a girl aged seven, and a boy, aged four years. He alleged that she deserted him and refused to live with him. She positively refused to move to Monacahton City and when he sent for his clothes she threatened to burn them, the testimony disclosed.

It was said at noon that his chances for recovery are bright despite the fact that yesterday his condition was such that a fatal outcome was feared from his rash act.

Five More Tablets Will Be Erected

Five more tablets to mark historical spots are to be erected in Fayette county by the old Fort Necessity celebration committee of 1901, and W. T. Kennedy has received the bill of lading for the tablets which have been shipped from Gettysburg by the manufacturer, Calvin Gilbert, who makes tablets for the government. The tablets and posts weigh 270 pounds each.

One tablet will mark the site of Fort McCoy and will be taken in charge by the Uniontown Country Club and erected on their grounds. Another tablet will mark Fort Van Swearingen on the Ben Ramsey farm near Point Marion, and a committee from Springfield township will place it. Fort Mason at Muscatown will be marked by a tablet to be placed by a committee consisting of Dr. G. W. Scott, Alex. Mack and Squire William Sangston.

Tablets will also mark Fort Craft on the Stearns farm near Brownsville and Fort Crabbe near South Brownsville. These will be taken in charge by the committee of the Eighty-fifth Regiment whose reunion will be held Thursday and Friday at Brownsville, and will be erected this week with appropriate exercises. It is probable that exercises will also be held at the erection of all the other tablets in the county.

Men's Class Has Corn Roast Coming

The men's class of the Christian church will entertain the younger men of the church Friday evening at a corn roast that promises to be something out of the ordinary. At player meeting last night the proposition to average two cars to a guest was tabored and the limit goes higher than that. The limit on the cars to be consumed will be governed by the appetite and capacity of the consumer. The guests will be the members of the classes of D. P. Heas and B. J. Gitchell. President John L. Gans is taking an active interest to see that his class does the proper thing while posing as host. It is officially stated that the ingredients to be served are not limited to the vegetable whose product of silk has furnished material for many a kid's first smoke.

The supper will follow a volley ball game in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium between the married and single men.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 12.—Arguments were heard by Judge Shender and Haymaker on the constitutionality of Judge L. L. Davis' decision on the McKeesport "ripper" bill which resulted in the filing of 20 applications for the nomination of Mayor and a general political mixup in cities and boroughs throughout the State.

The arguments followed a petition filed by former Governor William A. Stone yesterday for an injunction restraining the County Commissioners from publishing the Mayorality and Burgess candidates on the primary election ballots. Attorney Stone cited the constitutional amendment approved November 2, 1909 and the subsequent legislative measures relative thereto.

Burgess J. L. Evans this morning granted permission for the orchestra to play during the parade of Sunday, October 1, when the new Holy Trinity Roman Catholic cemetery at Poplar Grove will be dedicated. A large number of invitations have been issued, each bearing a reserved seat coupon. The cemetery has been established by the Holy Trinity church of the West Side, of which Rev. J. L. Lundecki is the pastor. There will be a parade through town at 11:30 on the way to the cemetery, services being held both at the church and later at Poplar Grove.

A Woman's Bank Account.
The first Savings Bank opened its books to women depositors in the year 1819. Since that time the accounts of women have increased until women now represent about 40% of the savings depositors in this country. This bank invites the accounts of women and its officers are always pleased to explain any matters relating to the keeping of a bank account. The Citizens National Bank, Connelville.

"BLUE LAWS" AT IRWIN.

Civic Association Stir Up Dealers in Cruelty.

IRWIN, Pa., Sept. 12.—(Special) This town is in the throes of one of the most unique "blue law" campaigns in the history of Western Pennsylvania. It has reached the stage where it effects all lines of business on week days as well as Sundays. Some weeks ago the local Civic Association made an effort to clamp the lid tight on Sundays. Several arrests were made and fines were paid by dealers.

The next Sunday all were again doing business and again arrests were made and fines imposed. After the second experience, all business places were closed tight, except a confectionery and ice cream establishment. They kept running until last Sunday after having paid out several hundred dollars in fines, costs and attorney's fees. They finally threw up their hands and threatened to make information.

A Bad Storm Hit Springfield

United Press Telegram.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 12.—Several persons were injured and property damaged to the extent of $100,000 here early today by a miniature cyclone which broke off and uprooted trees, toppled over chimneys, blew down telegraph poles and wires and overturned outhouses. The wind reached a velocity of 62 miles an hour.

Twenty-five thousand dollars will be required to repair the State house. Nearly every window in the west wing of the structure was blown in and long strips of copper roofing were blown off the dome. Heavy rain fell in the dome was smashed. Street car service was suspended early today.

Rev. MacMillan Called by Death

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 12.—The Rev. Dr. W. L. MacMillan, aged 73 years, for 25 years pastor of the Second United Presbyterian church of the North Side, died at his home here today. Dr. MacMillan was trustee of the Grove City College and a member of the General Mission Board.

Invitations for the marriage of his daughter, Elizabeth to Andrew Duff, of this city, were issued yesterday. The wedding has been set for September 23.

BE A WINNER.

There's an Opportunity Waiting For You—Be Ready for It.
Make up your mind to be a winner in the battle of life. Don't be content to go along from day to day just living from hand to mouth. This country is full of opportunities for an ambitious man. Your opportunity is waiting for you. Get ready for it. Save some money. Save a little out of every pay but it in a strong bank where it will earn more money for you. The First National Bank of Connelville, for instance, where savings are absolutely safe and earn 1% interest. $1 opens an account.

Called Back By Death.
Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Work and Miss Belle McDonald, who had started east on an automobile trip of a week or ten days were called back last night by the death of Harry Craighead of Beaver Falls, Pa. Mr. Craighead was the stepfather of Mrs. Work and Miss McDonald. They returned to Beaver Falls by train while Mr. Work is driving back to Connelville.

Luncheon For Bride-Elect.
Mrs. M. L. McKee and daughter, Helena, of Scotland, were joint hostesses at a prettily appointed 3 o'clock luncheon last evening in honor of Miss Rose McFarland, a bride-elect of Connelville. The table was beautifully decorated with pink roses and candles. Covers were laid for eight.

LAZY LIVER, BILIOUSNESS, HEADACHE, COATED TONGUE OR A BAD STOMACH.

You men and women who somehow can't get feeling right—who have an almost daily headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passage-way every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

10c per box. Also 25c and 50c boxes.

Governors for Liability Laws

United Press Telegram.
SPRING LAKE, N. J., Sept. 12.—Twenty-eight Governors and ex-Governors today united in support of employers' liability and workmen's compensation legislation at the Governors' conference. Governors Foss of Massachusetts, May of Washington and Wilson of New Jersey made the principal addresses. Their views were generally supported.

The conference seemed to be practically unanimous in favor of the compensation principle. Governor Foss asserted that until private liability companies are eliminated there is little hope for the proper working out of really helpful workmen's laws. He outlined the compensation law passed by the last Massachusetts legislature and heartily endorsed its provisions.

There is a vast discrimination against American labor by corporations," declared Governor Foss. "One lumberman in my State employing a thousand men told me that five men were killed in his camps each year. He declared his company was not compensated to pay a dollar damages for these deaths because they only employed unmarried men and foreigners who were not provided for in the workmen's compensation act."

Governor Wilson spoke along the same line.

Commissioners' Decision.
The County Commissioners announced last night that burgesses and tax collectors in boroughs, and tax collectors in townships will not be elected at the November election which is not in accordance with the decision rendered by Judge J. L. Davis, of the Pittsburgh judiciary, last Friday.

Machinists Elect New President.
William Johnston, of Washington, D. C., was recently elected President of the International Association of Machinists over James O'Connell, who held that position for many years. Johnston was the candidate of the progressives.

Maine is In the Dry Column

United Press Telegram.
PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 12.—After a day of almost constant surprises, during which the result many times was hanging in the balance, it appeared last night on the face of returns from town and city clerks in all but 136 towns and plantations that prohibition had won in the special election of yesterday by 105 votes. Most of the towns yet to be heard from have been reported unofficially with small majorities favoring retention of the prohibition amendment in the constitution and any change in the vote of these places likely will help the prohibitionists.

In addition to the 105 majority shown by the clerks' returns, there are 50 more "dry" votes known to exist in Portland which are not included in the city clerks' report because of an admitted error. If necessary this anti-prohibitionists will petition for a recount. The change from an apparent victory for the "wet" side by 700 votes to 609 votes in favor of the "dry" came as a big surprise.

POLITICAL ORGANS AND PRIMARY POLITICS.

In the glorious heyday of its political prosperity and the blithesome glances of its factional power, when it represented imperial rule, or dreamed that it did, our esteemed and optimistic contemporary, the Uniontown Herald, with all the confidence of the Chancellor, announced with the rising of the sun that the glorious orb of day came up by its special permission and that with its generous and gracious approval the Republican voters of Fayette county were privileged to ratify at the primary polls the nomination of a certain State which was there-with presented.

The proposition was new to Fayette county politics and there is even now a lingering suspicion that it was imported together with the newspaper talent which suggested it. However this may be, it is a fact that the State was boldly announced and the Republican voters were bidden to support it for the reason that it was the personal choice of Sheriff Peter Adolphus Johns and some other Republican politicians. The deal was too raw for the Republican voters of Fayette county. They rose on their rear legs and annihilated the State into smithereens. They resented brazen effrontery, and made it plain that they were men, not menials.

In spite of this lesson, we find the same representative of special political privilege pursuing the same tactics in this primary campaign. It must be said in its behalf that it is more diplomatic than it was on the former occasion. It has not announced its State formally, but it is giving daily object lessons concerning the candidates who are not a part of that particular State. Its picture gallery alone is an insidious invitation to the innocent voter.

"All's fair in love," and they say in politics, but we have always thought it a good rule for party newspapers to keep out of party primaries to the end that they may always be able to support party candidates with grace and earnestness. For this reason we protest against the action of The Herald in attacking the candidates on the primary ticket who do not seem to be on its little State. Let every candidate have a fair show, and when the nominations are made let the Republican press be prepared to give the Republican ticket its undivided and unanimous support.

The proposition of the citizens of the South Connelville to exonerate the State company from taxation is a generous and enterprising, but we very much doubt whether it will be a moving inducement to the company to start the plant equipped with other considerations. Local taxes on the mill are insupportable.

The Uniontown Herald is running recklessly into the exp lines.

Autumn's chill has overtaken us.

Greensburg will be a Sunday School center this week. It is to be hoped that Editor Jim Latta will have due respect for the creation and print no risqué things in the Greensburg Argus.

Coroner Bell's annual report indicates that the Green River had a bumper crop in Fayette county.

Irish has the Blues.

After many years civic pride is shaking out Fayette county's historic spots.

The heavy hand of the law is upon the shoulders of Sheriff Shields of Westmoreland county.

It seems that Malino is about half-and-half.

The supreme Court has determined that McKeesport was not unduly ripped, though for a spell the Tube City folks thought they were somewhat torn.

The Sons of Sunny Italy love the light and adore the fireworks.

The Uniontown Herald announces that it is writing some "plain editorial." It is in one sense plain editorial. It is plainly factional. The Herald just can't keep out of primary politics. It seems to think it has a mission there.

It is reported that Andrew Carnegie's campaign of universal education has taken a new form. He is investing in newspapers as well as libraries.

Italy is afflicted with the convulsions of nature.

Revolution seems to be fashionable in the foreign countries. Portugal deposed its king. Mexico forced its President to resign. China is now chasing its provincial governors. But Nicholas and William are still holding down their jobs.

The Pittsburgh testing station is extending its usefulness.

Paris advices are that the hobble skirt will be succeeded by the crinoline. This is jumping from the frying pan into the fire. A combination of the crinoline skirt and the present day hat will leave no standing room on earth for men.

The Fayette county newspapers are becoming political picture galleries, and it is really surprising to note the number of handsome men who seek office if the women had voted this campaign would have the summer situation tumbled.

The efforts of the State authorities to promote the planting of orchards are commendable. Pennsylvania is capable of producing some of the finest apples ever grown. They may not be so large as those of California and Arkansas, but they have a much better flavor.

We note with interest that a car of eggs have been planted in the Yough river. Is it possible that there is a movement afoot to make the river a duck pond?

Sugar is soaring again. Perhaps the Trust is getting notoriously active.

The Eagles Club of Fayette City pled guilty of selling liquors without a license. The disposition of this case will be watched with interest by hotel men who pay liberally for the privilege of keeping a bar during limited portions of the days and the weeks.

The Tax Collector is after the Connelville canines with the big stick.

SCOTSDALE, Sept. 13.—Sunday school workers and pupils of this vicinity are planning to attend the nineteenth annual convention of the Westmoreland County Sunday School Association in Greensburg next Thursday and Friday. The men's Bible classes of the different churches are considering going to the convention in a body and the West Penn Highway Company has offered the attractive fare of 50 cents for the round trip on Friday evening so that a couple of cars or more may be filled with those who will take part in the parade. The meeting that evening will be held in the First Presbyterian church, and Robert J. McDowell will lead the song service at 7.30. Rev. W. G. Russell, pastor of the Baptist church of Scottdale, will lead the prayer service immediately following. Two great addresses are scheduled for that evening. "Men and the Sunday School" by J. DUNBAR, Sept. 13.—Charles Moyer of Onondaga, N. Y., spent Sunday here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Moyer, near Fayette.

Charles G. G. of Connellsville, was here the guest of friends.

On Sunday a prominent young man of Connellsville drove here with his horse and buggy and while here took several young men of town out driving and after driving them back to their homes started from the hotel home down the paved street in a reckless way of driving, which he was arrested for fast driving, which he was pulled over and let for his home in Connellsville. This is what should have been done long ago and not only for fast driving of horses but the dangerous of automobiles. It is a wonder that some of the small children living along the paved street are not run down by the automobiles and it is only a miracle that they are not. If one of the fast drivers of these machines were pulled in it may be a lesson to some of them in the future.

LADIES' SECTION

With the cooler weather also has come the necessity for the Ladies' Tailored Suit.

Few ladies can go into a store and get a suit but that requires some alteration, and these alterations usually are made by inexperienced girls who know nothing whatever about the fundamental principal of garment building, and in nine cases out of ten such a suit shows disagreeable evidences of what it has gone through.

If you are one with whom the fore-going is the case, the wisdom of having your Tailored Suits made for you first hand, ought to appeal to you.

I have as fine a sample line as you will find anywhere, embracing Lustre Velvets, Corduroy and Novelty Wool Velvets, Velour and Panne Zibelines, Fancy Striped Mixture and French Crystal Suitings, Novelty reversible suitings and coatings, serges and chevots, and an excellent line of broadcloths in every shade.

All my work is made on the basis that if it isn't right you don't get it. This removes all speculation on your part and justifies me in asking for your business in this line.

My Lady of the North

THE LOVE STORY OF
A GRAY JACKET
By RANDALL PARRISH
AUTHOR OF
"WHEN WILDERNESS WAS KING"
Illustrations by Arthur T. Williamson

"I shall share these grapes with my cot-mate over yonder," he said laughingly. "By the way, Colla, his voice sounded strangely familiar to me a short time ago. Just glance over there and see if he is any one you know."

I heard the soft rustle of skirts, and, without a smile, looked up into her dark eyes. There was a sudden start of pleased surprise.

"Why," she exclaimed eagerly, "it is Colonel Curran Edith, dear, here is the Rebel who pretended to be Myrtle Curran's brother."

How the hot blood leaped within my veins at mention of that name; but before I could lift my head he had swept across the narrow aisle, and was standing beside me. Wife, or what, there was that within her eyes which told me a wondrous story. For the instant, in her surprise and agitation, she forgot herself, and lost that marvelous self-restraint which had held us so far apart.

"Captain Wayne!" she cried, and her gloved hands fell instantly upon my own, where it rested without the coverlet. "You here, and wounded?"

I smiled up at her, feeling now that my injuries were indeed trivial.

"Somewhat weakened by loss of blood, Mrs. Brennan, but not dangerously hurt." Then I could not but bear asking softly, "Is it possible you can feel regret over injuries inflicted upon a Rebel?"

Her cheeks flushed, and the audacious words served to recall her to our surroundings.

"Even although I love my country, and sincerely hope for the downfall of her enemies," she answered soberly, "I do not delight in suffering. Were you in that terrible cavalry charge? They tell me scarcely a man among them survived."

"I rode with your regiment," I knew it was your regiment—the name was upon every lip, and even our own men unite in declaring it a magnificent sacrifice, a most gallant deed. You must know I thought instantly of you when I was told it was the act of the—th Virginia."

There were tears in my eyes. I know, as I listened to her, and my heart warmed at this frank confession of her remembrance.

"I am glad you cared sufficiently for me," I said gravely, "to hold me in your thought at such a time. Our command merely performed the work given it, but the necessity has cost us dearly. You are yet at General Sheridan's headquarters?"

"Only temporarily, and simply because there has been no opportunity to get away, the movements of the army have been so hurried and uncertain. Since the battle Miss Minor has desired to remain until assured of Lieutenant Catton's permanent recovery. He was most severely wounded, and of course I could not well leave her here alone. Indeed I am her guest, as we depart tomorrow for her home, to remain indefinitely."

"But Miss Minor is, I understand, a native of this State?"

"Her home is in the foothills of the Blue Ridge, along the valley of the Cowkin—a most delightful old Southern mansion. I passed the summer there when a mere girl, previous to the war."

"But will it prove safe for you now?"

"Oh, indeed, yes; everybody says so. It is entirely out of the track of both armies, and has completely escaped depopulation. But you, Captain Wayne; surely you have already risked enough?"

"There is much suffering upon both sides, but surely even you would not wish me to be other than true to what I look upon as a duty?"

"No; I think I—respect your choice."

I clasped her hand close within my own.

"Your words encourage me greatly," I said earnestly, "I have done so much to bring you trouble and sorrow that I have been fearful lest it had cost me what I value more highly than you can ever know."

These words were unfortunate, and instantly brought back to her a memory which seemed a barrier between us. I read the change in her averted face.

"That can never be, Captain Wayne," she returned calmly, yet rising even as she spoke. "You have come into my life under circumstances so peculiar as to make me always your friend, Colla," and she turned toward the others, "Is it not time we were going? I am very sure the doctor said you were to remain with Lieutenant Catton but a brief time."

"Why, Edith," retorted the other, gayly, "I have been ready for half an hour—haven't I, Arthur?—but you were so deeply engrossed with your Rebel I hadn't the heart to interrupt."

I could see the quick color as she mounted over Mrs. Brennan's throat. "Nonsense," she answered; "we have not been here that length of time."

"Did the Major emerge from out the late entanglement unhurt?" It was Catton's voice that spoke.

Much to his regret, I believe, he was not even under fire. The tone was cool and collected again. "I will say good-bye, Lieutenant; doubtless we shall see you at Mountain View so soon as you are able to take the four o'clock train. And, Captain Wayne, I trust I shall soon learn of your complete recovery."

My eyes followed them down the long aisle. At the entrance where they glanced back, and I lifted my hand. Whether she marked the gesture I do not know, for the next instant both ladies had disappeared without.

The night drew slowly down, and as it darkened, only one miserable lamp shed its dim rays throughout the great tent; nurses moved noiselessly from cot to cot, and I learned something of the nature of my own injuries from the gruff old surgeon who dressed the wound in my chest and fastened the splints along my arm.

It must have been midnight, possibly even later, when a number of rapid shots fired outside the tent around me, and I heard many voices shouting, mingled with the tread of horses' feet. The night-watch had already disappeared, and the startled inmates of the tent were in a state of intense confusion. As I lifted myself slightly, dazed by the sudden uproar and eager to learn its cause, the tent flap, which had been lowered to exclude the cold night air, was hastily jerked aside, and a man stepped within, casting one rapid glance about the dim interior. The flaring lamp overhead revealed to me a short, heavy-set figure, clad in a gray uniform.

"No one here need feel alarm," he said quietly, "We are not making war upon the wounded. Are there any Confederates present able to travel?" A dozen eager voices answered him, and men began to crawl out of their cots onto the floor.

"We can be burdened with no help—less or badly wounded men," he said sternly. "Only those able to ride. No, my man, you are in too bad shape to travel. Very sorry, my boy, but it can't be done. Only your left arm, you say? Very well, move out in front there. No, lad, it would be the death of you, for we must ride fast and hard."

It came to me a pause a half-dozen cots away from me, and seemed about to retreat from me. Dim as the light was, I felt convinced I had formerly seen that short figure and stern face with its closely cropped beard.

"Mosby," I called out, resolved to risk his remembrance. "Colonel Mosby, isn't it possible to take me?"

"Who are you?" he questioned sharply, turning in the direction of my voice.

"Wayne," I answered eagerly, "Wayne, of the—th Virginia."

In an instant he was standing beside my cot, his eyes filled with anxious interest.

"Phil Wayne, of Charlottesville? You here? Not badly hurt, my boy?"

"Shot and bruised, Colonel, but I'd stand a good deal to get out of this."

"And, by the Eternal, you shall; that is, if you can travel in a wagon. Here, Sims, Thomas, two of you carry this officer out. Take his clothes and all—easy now."

The fellows picked me up tenderly, and bore me slowly down the central aisle. Mosby walked beside us as far as the outer opening.

"Put him down there by the fire," he ordered, "until I look over the rest of these chaps and divide the wheat from the chaff."

CHAPTER XXIV.

A Night Ride of the Wounded.

It was a wild, rude scene without, yet in its way typical of a little-understood chapter of Civil War. More over it was one with which I was not entirely unacquainted. Years of cavalry scouting, bearing me beyond the patrol lines of the two great armies, had frequently brought me into contact with those various independent, irregular forces which, co-operating with us, often rendered most efficient service by prying on the scattered Federal camps and piercing their lines of communication. Seldom risking an engagement in the open, their policy was rather to dash down upon some outpost or poorly guarded wagon train, and retreat with a rapidly rendering pursuit hopeless. It was part of a warfare, and appealed to many an adapted to the soldier's discipline of regular service. These border rangers would rendezvous under some chosen leader, strike an unexpected blow where weakness had been discovered, then disappear as quickly as they came, oftentimes scattering widely until the call went forth for some fresh assault. It was service not dissimilar to that performed during the Revolutionary struggle by Sumter and Marion in the Carolinas, and added in the aggregate many a day to the contest of the Confederacy.

Among these wild, rough riders between the lines no leader was more favorably known of our army, nor more dreaded by the enemy, than Mosby. Daring to the point of recklessness, yet wary as a fox, counting opposing numbers nothing when weighed against the advantage of surprise, tireless in saddle, audacious in resource, quick to plan and equally quick to execute, he was always where least expected, and it was seldom he failed to win reward for those who rode at his back. Possessing regular rank in the Confederate Army, making report of his operations to the commander-in-chief, his peculiar talent as a partisan leader and won him the name of "The Phantom of the Shenandoah."

As I did, I was not surprised that he should now have swept suddenly out of the black night upon the very verge of the battle to drive his irritating sting into the hard-earned Federal victory.

An empty army wagon, the "U. S. A." yet conspicuous upon its canvas cover, had been overturned and fired in front of the hospital tent to draw light to the raiders. Grouped about beneath the trees, and within the glow of the flames, was a picturesque squad of horsemen, hardy, tough-looking fellows the most of them, their clothing an odd mixture of uniforms, but everywhere heavily armed and admirably equipped for service. Some remained mounted, lounging carelessly in their saddles, but for the larger number were on foot, their bridle-reins wound about their wrists. All alike appeared alert and ready for any emergency. How many composed the party I was unable to judge with accuracy, as they constantly came and went from out the shadows beyond the circumference of the fire. As all sounds of firing had ceased, I concluded that the work planned had been already accomplished. Undoubtedly, surprised as they were, the small Federal force left to guard this point had been quickly overwhelmed and scattered.

The excitement attendant upon my release had left me for the time being utterly forgetful as to the pain or my wounds, so that weakness alone held me to the blanket upon which I had been left. The night was decidedly chilly, yet I had scarcely begun to feel its discomfort, when a man strode forward from out of the nearer group and stood looking down upon me. He was a young fellow, wearing a gray artillery jacket, with high cavalry boots coming above the knees. I noticed his firmly set jaw, and a pearl-handled revolver stuck carelessly in his belt, but observed no symbol of rank about him.

"Is this Captain Wayne?" he asked, not unpleasantly.

I answered by an inclination of the head, and he turned at once toward the others.

"Come, bring three men over here, and carry this officer to the same wagon you did the others," he commanded briefly. "Fix him comfortably, but be in a hurry about it."

They lifted me in the blanket, one holding tightly at either corner, and bore me tenderly out into the night. Once one of them tripped over a projecting root, and the sudden jar of his stumble shot a spasm of pain through me, which caused me to cry out even through my clenched teeth.

"Pardon me, lads," I panted, ashamed of the weakness, "but it slipped out before I could help it."

"Don't be after a mention!" as it were, returned a rich brogue. "Sure an me foot got so mixed out that I wonder I didn't drop ye entirely."

"If ye had, Clency," said the man named Cass, grimly, "I reckon as how the Colonel would have drapped you."

At the foot of a narrow ravine, leading forth into the broader valley, we came to a covered army wagon, to which four mules had been already attached. The canvas was drawn aside, and I was lifted up and carefully deposited in the bay that thickly covered the bottom. It was so intensely dark within I could see nothing of my immediate surroundings, but a low moan told me there must be at least one other wounded man present. Outside I heard the tread of horses' hoofs, and then the sound of Mosby's voice.

"Jalte," he said, "drive rapidly, but with as much care as possible. Take the lower road after you cross the bridge, and you will meet with no patrols. We will ride beside you for a couple of miles."

Then a hand thrust aside the canvas, and a face peered in. I caught a faint glimmer of stars, but could distinguish little else.

"Boys," said the leader, kindly, "I wish I might give you better transportation, but this is the only form of vehicle we can find. I reckon you'll get pretty badly bumped over the road you are going, but I'm furnishing you all the chance to get away in my power. We shall guard you as long as necessary, and then must leave you to the kindly ministrations of the driver."

He reached in, leaning down from his saddle to do so, draw the blanket somewhat closer about me, and was gone. I caught the words of a sharp, short order, and the heavy wagon lurched forward, its wheels bumping over the irregularities in the road, each jolt sending a fresh spasm of pain through my tortured body.

May the merciful God ever protect me from such a ride against it seemed interminable, while each long mile we traveled brought with it new and greater agony of mind and body.

The hours that followed were all but endless. I knew we had reached the lower valley, for the road became more level, yet the slightest jolting now was sufficient to render me crazed with pain, and I had lost all power of restraint. My tortured nerves throbbled; the fever gripped me, and my mind began to wander. Visions of delirium came, and I dreamed dreams too terrible for record: demons danced on the drifting clouds before me, while whirling savages chanting in horrid discord swung my frantically full of blazing brands. At times I was aware of calling in vain for water to quench a thirst which grew maddening, then I passed into a semi-consciousness that trove me wild with its delirious fancies. I knew vaguely that the Major and I had passed through the darkness and passed his strong arm gently beneath my head. I heard him shouting in his deep voice to the driver for something to drink, but was unaware of any response. All became blurred, confused, bewildering. I thought it was my mother comforting me. The faint gray daylight stole in at last through the cracks of the wagon cover; I could dimly distinguish a dark face bending over me, framed by a heavy gray beard, and then, merciful unconsciousness came, and I rested as one dead.

Tona Vita Builds Up Human System

In a recent interview one of the physicians who was introducing the remarkable new tonic "Tona Vita" to the American public, had this to say:

"The manner of living in the larger cities of the United States is such that perfect health is almost impossible; the human machine will not run true and strong day after day with its vitality continually being sapped by the constant nervous strain, irregular hours, hastily eaten food, the wear and tear and rush of city life, are largely responsible for the immense amount of dull, listless, half-sick people of the present generation. Delicacy or a 'run down' condition as it is called, is everywhere. Half the people I see in street cars, restaurants, theatres, or on the street, are unmistakably in a debilitated condition, with their nerves in such a state that they either wish to lie down and rest or rush after some excitement."

"Any one who has met a constant stream of nervous debilitated people as I have since I began my present work, can tell a man or woman in this condition at a glance. I wish to emphatically state that the number of debilitated people in the larger American cities, is appalling."

"Tona Vita," the medicine I am helping to introduce, is to combat this condition. I believe it to be the best preparation ever before sold to the public, in that it is immediately effective in cases of debility and other troubles that go hand in hand with this disease."

You can not hope to enjoy life or meet with much success if you are tired all the time, have little ambition, and feel continually depressed in mind and body. Every half-sick, worn-out man or woman, owes it to themselves and their family to try "Tona Vita."

If the tonic does not make life more worth living, and brings back the healthy, energetic spirit, that is now lacking, the price is refunded. A. A. Clarke has the agency for "Tona Vita" in Connellsville; also for Lee's Rheumatism Laxative, the purest and best family laxative on the market. Lee's Rheumatism Laxative will not injure the most delicate constitution. It is ideal for children.

OWENSDALE.

Special to The Courier. OWENSDALE, Sept. 11.—A number of well-meaning young men to pass the time away occasionally got into one of their neighbors' chicken hostilities and disturb the middle's slumbers long enough to snatch a couple of her broilers or sisters and then try to show up a bit of the future by wringing their necks and roasting them over the coals ovens. The next day they will then go and tell the owners that they were the ones that put down their poultry. "As long as it was you fellows it don't matter much," is told them. But this isn't the proper way to do and is certainly perilous pleasure. If these young men wish to have a pleasant time in this manner they should ask for the chickens and there by not invite danger.

SANITARY CONDITIONS

About the Frick Coke Plants Are Being Improved.

TARR, Sept. 12.—(Special.)—Thousands of dollars are now being spent by the H. C. Frick Coke Company in improving the sanitary conditions of their towns throughout the big region.

Central and Morewood, near here, Standard, Hecla and Brinkerton are among the towns now receiving the benefit of new Frick company appropriations. The old wooden vaults at the miners' and coke workers' homes are being replaced by vaults of concrete and the streets are being lined with concrete drains. All this prevents the towns from being flooded with obnoxious waters and waste. The planing of the drains also calls for better road making through the towns, as the thoroughfares have to be rounded on the improved style to run the water into the conduits.

Baseball Notes.

The New England League has turned down an offer to consolidate with the Connecticut League.

The Philadelphia Nationals had a list of 25 players they wanted to land by the draft route.

Pitcher Jeff Pfeffer, of the Boston Nationals, will most likely perform in the Southern League next season.

Rumors of a baseball war are flying thick and fast, but the chances are that there will be nothing doing.

"Nap" Lajoie has passed Jackson and is crowding Ty Cobb for the batting championship of the American League.

Jack Dalton, now with Newark in the Eastern League, will be given another tryout by the Brooklyn club next spring.

During the Athletics' stay in St. Louis President Hickes made flattering offers to Harry Davis to manage the Browns next season.

Thursday, August 31, was the first day this season that not a major league game was played. Rain put the kibosh on the entire schedule.

As the Athletics will be playing at home while Detroit is hitting the road, prospects for the pennant look pretty sweet to Connie Mack.

Catcher "Chief" Meyers, of the Giants, has his old war club on the job this season. He stands third in the National League batting averages.

Larry Cheney, the Louisville pitcher, has joined the Chicago Cubs, and will be given a chance to show his pizazz against the eastern teams.

Tris Speaker says that the no-hit game pitched by Ed Walsh, of the White Sox, against the Red Sox was the greatest exhibition that he ever faced.

"Cy" Young, Walter Johnson, Grover Cleveland Alexander and "Ole" Grandall, stars among the pitchers, are all real farmers. Young owns Ohio farms, Johnson a Kansas ranch, Alexander a Nebraska farm and Grandall is buying Indiana land as fast as he can.

It is said that the Pittsburgh Pirates form the real "white ribbon" brigade in the big show this season. Last year some of the Pirates were in the habit of "cutting loose" now and then, but this season, with a pennant in sight, the boys have lived close to the pump.

With the Soxers.
Promoters of the Wolcott-McFarland bout in Milwaukee Sept. 15, expect a $50,000 house.

In his recent bout with K. O. Brown, Matt Wells convinced the New York fans that he is as clever as the best in the business.

FOR COUNTY TREASURER.

GEORGE M. RATHMELL

OF SOUTH BROWNVILLE

To the Republican voters of Fayette county:
I am a candidate for the office of County Treasurer, subject to the decision of the Republican primaries on the 20th day of this month. I was born and raised in Brownsville, where my father was also born and raised. I have been in business in this county for 28 years, and have been in politics almost as long, voting the Republican ticket since I was able to vote. My party service has been not only as a voter, but as a delegate to the state convention, membership of the county committee, on the town council and on the school board—positions without either pay or emolument, but appreciated by me for the opportunity to do what I could for the community as well as the party. If nominated and elected County Treasurer I promise the people a fair, honest and business-like administration, unimpaired by any consideration save that of the public interest. I will be grateful to you for your influence and support.
